

Snow Blockade Stops Highway Traffic Eastward

January Very Cold Month

Heaviest Fall of Snow Seen for Many Years—Railways Maintain Passenger and Freight Service.

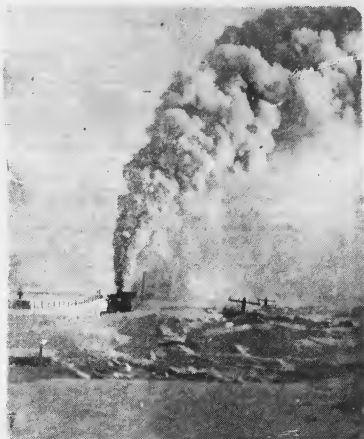

Commencing between Christmas and the New Year, the temperature has varied from 20 degrees above zero to 37 below, with frequent snowstorms. On Monday evening for three hours there was an absence of wind and a rise in temperature, creating the impression that a Chinook was on the way, but early Tuesday morning thermometers registered below zero from 15 to 20 degrees.

Highway traffic between the Pass towns has continued with little interruption, but east of Bellevue there is practically no auto traffic. The highway west is being freely used, there being a detour of half a mile near Sentinel to avoid an icy stretch caused by a backflow from Pariah's Creek. Two men were sent out by the highways department to open a channel to allow the water to escape. A report earlier in the week that 120 men were sent proved to be erroneous.

It is ten days since a bus went east, and it is reported that traffic will not be resumed till the highway is safe for motor traffic. Cowley has snow drifts across the highway as high as the houses, with snow so heavily packed that the plow cannot get through, making it necessary to employ men and horses.

Railway traffic has continued, with some delays, but no trains have been cancelled on this division. Over 100 extra men have been working out of Lethbridge clearing snow on C.P.R. tracks. On Wednesday morning at Cowley about 70 men were working on the C.P.R. tracks. No men were at work on the highway, stated a journal correspondent at that village, and the snow plow was unable to make any impression on the huge snowdrifts.

Canadians have a busy week ahead. To-night they play Blairmore Bearcats, a league game transferred from Blairmore in anticipation of better support being accorded them than in their home town. They play here again on Monday, Feb. 1. Calgary Radios, who defeated Canadians here in December, will play here on Thursday and Friday next in exhibition games, far this week-end on the C.P.R., which will bring a big turn out.

FIVE powerful locomotives, three snow plows besides a small army of men were employed to break through this immense drift on the C.P.R. at Cowley. Photo by courtesy of Calgary Herald.

Hockey and Curling Activities; Three Rinks Going to Fernie Bonspiel. Calgary Radios to Play Exhibition Games

Three rinks, skipped by Boulton, Moores and Destobell, are expected to represent Coleman at the Crows Nest Pass bonspiel at Fernie next week.

J. S. D'Appolonia gained the pinnacle of curling fame on Monday evening as he skipped his rink to win an eight end from Destobell. To gain an eight end one must built a perfect house (in which John is adept) against the onslaughts of the opposition. This perhaps the first eight-end ever to be won at the local arena and congratulations go to the winning rink.

Now the season is half over, a number of new members are enjoying the game for an entrance fee of $4.00. Anyone wishing to take advantage of this bargain price may apply to any skip.

Hockey Notes

Canadians will travel to Lethbridge on Saturday to play Leafs in their third exhibition game of the season. Lethbridge have gained one victory in six games, with the locals and will try to get another win. Due to the bargain fare this week-end on the C.P.R., $1.85 return from Lethbridge, a number of fans are intending to travel with the team.

Lethbridge failed to keep their league engagement with Blairmore Bearcats at the local arena on Monday evening. It is said the Leafs were left holding the bag to the tune of $75 the last time Bearcats travelled to Lethbridge and that due to expense, bad roads and the fact that no decent gate was in sight for the game, added to which the league standing is practically settled, Leafs decided to call the game off.

Blairmore are contemplating moving their play-off series to Coleman where they state better gates may be had. Seven dollars was the total receipts against Bellevue, which hardly paid the lights.

In a few weeks Canadians will hit forth to Nelson and Trail where they will play exhibition games. At the end of the tour Nelson Miners and Trail Smoke Eaters will reciprocate by coming to Coleman for exhibition games.

Duke Scodellaro played the centre position on one of the forward lines for Trail Canucks on Monday night. Duke should have stayed in goal as their opponents, the Smoke Eaters, were leading 10-1 with the game still going strong.

Playing for Earls Court Rangers against Manchester Royals the other night, Harry Brown crashed into the boards, breaking his collar bone.

Unemployed Meet Relief Commissioner

Meeting Held at Bellevue When Commissioner Explains Provisions of Federal-Provincial Camps

Meeting in Bellevue miners' hall on Saturday, A. McKenzie and E. O. Duke, M.L.A., heard protests from representatives of unemployed against men from Calgary being placed in camps at Summit and Bellevue, while local men were left to shift for themselves. Principal McLean of Bellevue and Rev. Mr. Upton, United Church minister, were chairman and secretary of the meeting.

The men were informed that the Federal government made the provisions under which men should be employed in these work camps, which are confined to inter-provincial highway work. The Federal and provincial governments each pay half of the cost, and 30c per hour is the rate, with six hours per day, and deduction of 75c per day for board and lodging. A holdback is made for blankets, and necessities such as soap and articles of a personal nature are paid for by the men.

The single transient men in the cities who have no homes must be taken care of, the commissioner stated to The Journal reporter, while the single unemployed men of the Crows Nest Pass have at least homes, and he felt that parents should assume a share of the responsibility and not expect the government to bear the entire burden of keeping these men. The line must be drawn, and relief appropriations by the Federal are being curtailed as it is claimed that improved employment conditions this spring will open up more avenues for employment.

In reply to suggestions made by the unemployed that forestry trails and eliminating fire hazards would furnish employment, and that allowance be made for those unemployed living at home, the commissioner stated that there was not sufficient money available to take up these proposals.

In the absence of Mayor Pattinson on vacation in Victoria, Councillor Hayson will be chairman at the annual meeting tomorrow (Friday) evening. For the school district ratepayers meeting Arthur Reid, chairman of the trustees, will preside. All ratepayers are urged to attend.

The meeting proceeded in orderly style, some Social Credit workers of Pass groups being present, apparently to help present the claims of the unemployed. Coleman was not represented. The meeting lasted from 4 p.m. till 7.45.

St. John Ambulance Association Exams.

62 candidates were examined of a class of 91 seniors for St. John Ambulance certificates on Sunday by J. McAndrew, Calgary, of the Mines Rescue Division, and he was assisted by J. M. Rushton, Archie McCulloch and E. X. Hill.

SHOW-DOWN COMING

Having received notice that the single unemployed men in British Columbia's forestry and public works camps will go on strike at the end of the month unless they get more money, Hon. G. S. Pearson, minister of labor in the province, has announced in that event he will close all these camps and cut the men concerned off further relief.—Calgary Herald.

It is to be expected in The Journal it must be O.K.

St. Paul's Church Annual Meeting on Monday, February 1

The annual meeting of the congregation will be held on Monday evening, February 1st. Reports of the work in general will be submitted. The Ladies' Aid will serve refreshments at the close. All members and friends are cordially invited to attend.

The annual gathering of Lethbridge Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society will be held in Lethbridge February 15th, 16th. The date has been brought forward in order to take advantage of the presence in the city of the Right Rev. Peter Bryce, D.D., moderator of the general council of the church. Delegates will attend from Coleman.

It is still urgently necessary that all who can do so will make their donation to the church in order that the report presented on Monday evening may be clear and complete. Those in arrears in their envelope pledges and yearly gifts are especially asked to attend to this matter.

Services at the usual hours on Sunday with the church school after the morning service.

Boy Scouts Provincial Council

At the annual meeting of the provincial council of the Boy Scouts, held in Edmonton, members from this district elected were H. O. Westrup, Hillcrest; Rev. M. A. Harrington, Blairmore; H. T. Halliwell, Coleman; J. W. Gresham, D.C., ex-officio. Scouting has not been active in this district for some time, but it is hoped to revive interest during the summer.

Despite bad weather, work is progressing at Crows' Nest Lake on highway improvements, states Foreman Blair. There are 132 men in camp under the work and wages plan of the Federal and Provincial governments.

Should Abandon Political Partisanship For Canada's Welfare

Ottawa.—A call for overriding of political partisanship, with all its old enmities and vituperations in the common task of maintaining democracy and freedom was sounded here Saturday night by Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett.

The problems confronting the people of Canada could not be over-stated for their importance to the national life, the Conservative leader declared. They were not problems which could be disposed of merely by saying the country was prosperous or by expanding trade.

These, he said, were problems which had to be met in the spirit of Hertzig and Smuts (Premier J. B. M. Hertzig of South Africa and Vice-Premier Christian Smuts), ignoring the divisions of the past, if "government of, for and by the people" was to continue among men.

In his first public address since returning from a five-months trip around the empire, Mr. Bennett stressed the conditions of the peoples he met and their relationship to Canada within the Empire.

Two basic ideas had resulted from his trip, he said: First, how few people the Dominions had and how necessary it was they should have one if they were to retain their institutional life; secondly, how creditably they were grappling with the question of defence.

"If democracy cannot provide for the cultivation and inhabitation of vast areas which Providence has given to men in trust, then that democracy must give way to peoples who require those spaces for their own," he warned.

Defence measures were complementary to the idea of collective security, he said, which accounted for the great support which South Africa and Australia had given to the League of Nations, "because they believe democracy can only exist if the peace of the world is maintained."

"If the League of Nations fails some other means must be found to maintain the integrity of these people, that their civilization may not die. Above all else has developed a realization of the value of that collective security which is that commonwealth of nations called the British Empire."

The Conservative leader was guest of honor at a "welcome home" reception and banquet tendered him by 500 Ottawa Conservatives, headed on the men's side by Joseph Pritchard and on the women's by Mrs. William Herridge. Mr. Bennett's sister, who also expressed the pleasure of the Ottawa Women's Conservative Association in the new Ottawa leader, Hon. Earl Rowe.

New Zealand, Mr. Bennett said, had developed above all else a social security that ranks it foremost among the peoples of the world, with old-age pensions for all, the 40-hour week, state fire insurance, state life insurance (started when the government thought private companies charged too much), good banking facilities, government-owned railways, dental and medical clinics. The husbandman insisted co-operation was the only method by which he could hope to succeed, with co-operative creameries, parking plants, fisheries. The country was suffering, however, from a lack of population. Like New Zealand, Australia was vitally interested in defence, being in an exposed position, and was meeting the situation in a way which justified their pride in their naval efforts, he said.

South Africa, he declared, was "the most interesting country one could well visit," a country imbued with the spirit of (Cecil) Rhodes, a country with riches almost past understanding. He mentioned its great gold production, its diamonds, the greatest hematite deposit in the world, which supplies the great nationally-owned steel plant near Pretoria.

Highways, always, railways, were all under centralized control, there being no provincial governments such as Canada had, "so they're able to keep the buses off the highways," he laughed.

He reconsidered the railways, 14,000 miles, which last year had only earned lost cost on every dollar in them, but $22,000,000 surplus.

To Combat Influenza

Doctor Advises Best Thing Is To Build Up Resistance
Toronto. Changes in weather react neither favorably nor adversely on influenza, says Dr. John T. Phair of the Ontario department of health. "There is no foundation for the presumption that cold weather checks the spread of influenza and the germ is not lying around on slushy pavements," he said. "The disadvantage of wet feet is offset by exposure to cold weather."

"The important thing is devising some scheme of raising resistance to the disease," he said. "The germ is in the nose and throat of a carrier or patient, and is passed on to some exposed individual usually by a cough." Outbreaks of influenza were reported small in most districts. Most cases were of a mild nature. The death toll for the province stood at seven, five of which were in Toronto.

Asks Work For Wages Policy
Ottawa. Discontinuance of unemployment relief and substitution of a "work for wages" policy is urged in a resolution in the name of Dr. T. P. Donnelly (Lib., Wood Mountain) on votes and proceedings. Direct relief, says Dr. Donnelly, is demoralizing the people who receive it, increasing poverty and extending the period of depression.

Smith, Mr. Porter said the dual companies extended credits to merchants who in turn extended the credit to farmers. His point, said Mr. Porter, was that the linking of banking with marketing compelled the rapid movement of the crop on world markets.

Mr. Smith said he had heard such an operation was carried out in Argentina but that he had not definite information.

What could Canada do to meet competition developing from the situation? asked Mr. Porter.

The only thing Canada could do so far as he knew, said Mr. Smith, was to get the best price it could for its wheat and meet the competition. What the dual companies made on currency exchange did not come into the calculations of Canadian exporters, he said. He doubted if anyone could learn details of the dual operation.

Speculation on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange had increased greatly in the past year, said Mr. Smith, examined by M. A. MacPherson, Regina, counsel for the Saskatchewan wheat pool.

Speculative interest was almost essential to the open market and futures method of trading, said Mr. Smith. There was more general buying of wheat futures by the general public than a year ago, he estimated.

Next Stamp Issue

Will Be In General Distribution Before The Coronation

Ottawa.—There will be no issue of Edward VIII postage stamps in Canada, Hon. J. C. Elliott, postmaster general, stated.

The next issue will bear the effigy of the reigning monarch, George VI., and will be in general distribution before the coronation, he said. Immediately following the coronation a special commemorative issue will be released and remain in use for some weeks.

Mr. Elliott had no explanation to advance for not issuing the Edward VIII stamps, which have been in preparation for several months, other than that "there is no occasion to issue them now," since a new king was on the throne.

To avoid any possible shortage in stamp supplies before the new issue is ready, more are currently being printed from the George V. plates which have been in use up to the present.

Would Appoint Commission

Urge Probe Into Financial Difficulties Of Western Provinces

Ottawa.—Appointment of a royal commission to probe the financial difficulties of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta was urged on the senate by Hon. John T. Haig (Con., Winnipeg), in the debate on the address in reply to the throne speech.

This step was necessary to save the credit of the prairie provinces and resultant injury to Canada's financial standing. New homes constructed to relieve unemployment should be free from municipal taxation, Senator Haig submitted.

Loan companies and financial institutions were being driven out of the west by the radical legislation enacted by these provincial legislatures, Senator Is-S. McMeekin, another Conservative member from Winnipeg, asserted. "Many of the difficulties of the western provinces are due to the provinces themselves," he stated.

WARNS OF WAR

Speaking in London recently, Field Marshal Lord Milne, intimated that he would not be surprised if a war raged in Europe within the next five months.

Europe In Ice Grip

Weeks In Gale-Lashed Seas Cause Many Deaths

London.—Winter, tightening an icy grip over Europe, left many villages, snowbound and was believed the cause of at least 51 deaths in gale-lashed seas.

Twenty-five persons drowned when a German ship sank in a Baltic ice. Twenty others were lost in the wreck of the Finnish steamship Savamaa off Norway's southern coast. Two French fishing boats were reported foundered with loss of six men.

Snow storms swept Scandinavia, most of Germany, eastern France and northern England. Huge waves pounded the coast of Britain and France along the English channel and the Atlantic.

The 2,388-ton Russian steamship Sinen wrecked, she was drifting near the Shetland Islands, her rudder gone. A salvage ship put out to help her.

The Norwegian mailboat Venus saved 19 men from the Norwegian freighter Trym in the North Sea and started for Newcastle.

Passengers from a British mail ship who disembarked at Esbjerg, on the west coast of Denmark, to go by train to Copenhagen, on the east coast, had to return to Esbjerg, after spending the night on the train among snowdrifts.

Canadian Bluejackets

En Route To England To Bring Back Two Destroyers

Ottawa. Two officers and 119 ratings from the naval base at Esquimaux are en route to Halifax, their eventual destination, England. At the Nova Scotian port they will join a similar draft, and the combined party will sail on S.S. Montclare for Liverpool.

The Canadian bluejackets are assigned to the duty of bringing to Canada the two recently-purchased destroyers, H.M.C.S. Fraser and H.M.C.S. St. Laurent.

Flood Waters In United States Cause Heavy Property Loss

Colony For Germany

May Secure Part Of Portuguese Angola For Raw Materials

Berlin.—Germany's first post-war colony may be a slice of Africa considerably larger than the fatherland itself and containing many precious raw materials, reliable sources predicted.

There was no official confirmation, but reports persisted Reich-Chancellor Hitler is about to lease part of Portuguese Angola for 99 years. The colonial attainment will be announced, members of the Nazi black-uniformed "Schutz Staff" said, when the reichstag convenes Jan. 30.

The reported acquisition, some said, would be by outright purchase rather than lease. Others said the agreement will be for exploitation of the Angola territory by German monopoly under Portuguese sovereignty.

Many young German engineers and technicians said they already had made definite plans to go to Angola. Efforts to acquire Mozambique, on the eastern African coast, have been abandoned. It was said authoritatively, because of strong British opposition.

A list of the territory's resources coincides strikingly with that of raw materials Germany has sought most in recent years: gold, silver, manganese, copper, cotton, rubber. Other commodities are palm-oil, ivory, cattle and hides and dried or salt fish.

Meat is not plentiful in Germany this winter, so the cattle of Angola are looked upon with pleasure, the Nazis admit. And there is iron and petroleum deposits.

How much foreign population Angola can absorb may depend among other things on climate—described as "not particularly suitable for Europeans" along its 900 miles of coast. But inland, on the vast plateau, it is said to be healthful and invigorating.

Should Improve Quality

London. The dominions and Argentina should reduce their livestock production, producing less meat and improving the quality for better prices, as a solution to problems of the world meat trade, the Marquess of Titchfield (Conservative), declared in the House of Commons.

Quebec Minister Visiting West

Montreal. Discussions of rural problems between Hon. B. Dussault, Quebec minister of agriculture, and the ministers in western provinces, are planned during a tour which Mr. Dussault is making. The minister said he would spend three weeks in British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

Government Satisfied Easy Money Policy Is Best For Canada

Ottawa.—Although the Dominion government is convinced "an easy money policy is best for Canada, it is opposed to inflation as certain to bring ruin and misery."

Hon. Charles Dunning, minister of finance, made this clear in the House of Commons as two resolutions from the Social Credit group were defeated without recorded votes. One proposed a government issue of purchasing power and the other a national-wide scheme for financing consumption.

"From the domestic point of view parliament has entrusted to the Bank of Canada the function of regulating currency and credit in the public interest," said Mr. Dunning. "Obviously information regarding the day-to-day discharge of this function cannot be given but results show clearly the broad line of policy which has been followed by the bank."

"I think it can be said with safety that today lower interest rates for credit-worthy borrowers, individual, corporate, municipal, provincial and Dominion, prevail in Canada than ever before in Canada's history."

"And I submit that an easy money policy is the best policy for Canada at the present time, however unpopular it may be to those who have money to lend."

"But our testing-time will come whenever, by means of a too high price level, including wild speculation in commodities, stocks, etc., it be-

Chicago.—Destruction, suffering and deaths amounting with rapidly-rising rivers along the United States flood front.

More than 140,000 persons were homeless. Sixteen deaths were recorded. Damage ran into the millions.

Haiti Louisville was menaced by icy waters. The "greatest flood on record" was predicted for Cincinnati and the lower Ohio river points by Meteorologist W. C. Devereaux.

The glutt Mississippi averted toward unprecedented level at New Madrid, Mo. Flood danger spread to 12 states—reaching a scope nearly equal to the $300,000,000 flood disaster in 13 states last March.

Food, fuel and supplies were rushed to stricken centres. The Red Cross opened six new disaster headquarters as calls for medicine to combat sickness multiplied. The Works Progress Administration assigned 8,000 men to relief and rescue work. The coastguard sent 47 boats to submerged sections.

Failure of water-logged equipment in utility plants plunged more than a score of communities into darkness. Many factories suspended operations. Flood-bound business houses were closed.

Eighteen thousand residents of Portsmouth, Ohio, were forced from their homes. Muddy waters spilled over half the city to a depth of 10 feet in some places.

The overflow crept in other Ohio towns, including New Richmond, Ripley, Manchester, Higginsonport, Newell, Moscow, Ohio, Marietta, Ironton, Mingo Junction and Empire. The water went over the roofs in some New Richmond dwellings.

Freezing weather aggravated the distress of the refugees—sheltered in box cars, hospitals, public buildings, churches and tents.

Strengthening Defences

Germany Said To Be Fortifying Naval Base At Heligoland

Manchester.—The Manchester Guardian reported that Germany is strengthening her defences in the North Sea islands.

"The work of defences on the German North Sea islands has been intensified since the beginning of December," the Guardian said. "Eighty heavy guns have been mounted on Heligoland. Subterranean aerodromes, arsenals and petrol depots are now complete; some of them are 100 feet under the surface."

Heligoland, a tiny island about 35 miles off the German coast, was a strategic naval base during the Great War.

Say Bank Operations Assist Marketing Of Argentina's Crop

Winnipeg. Scenting a cause for rapid movement of Argentina wheat below Canadian price levels, counsel at the Turgeon royal grain commission sought effects of international banking operations when linked with marketing of Argentina's crop.

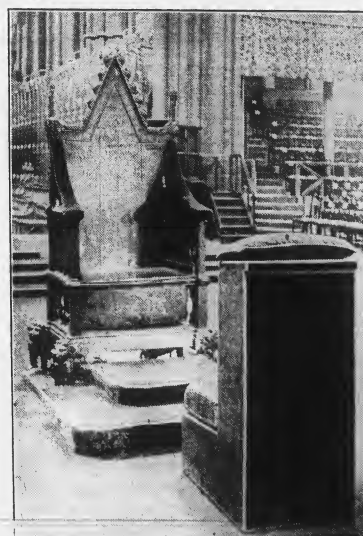

Mr. M. M. Porter, K.C., Calgary, counsel for the Alberta wheat pool, disclosed his information showed companies in both the banking and wheat exporting business established a price through dual operations that made it advisable for Canada to determine the exact situation.

The commission also heard from Sidney T. Smith, president of the Argentine Grain Company, Limited, that speculative interest in the Winnipeg Grain Exchange futures market was increasing. Questioned on reports of United States banking interests loaning money to terminal elevator companies at lower rates than Canadian banks, Mr. Smith said his company had considered such loans but declined against them.

Terminating discussion on the operations of dual banking and wheat exporting companies in Argentina, Mr. Justice W. F. A. Turgeon suggested Mr. Porter and Hon. J. L. Ralston, Montreal, commission counsel, confer on the question and determine what evidence could be produced.

ANCIENT CORONATION CHAIR READY FOR CEREMONIES

Those Canadian who have visited Westminster Abbey will undoubtedly have seen the Coronation Chair, upon which all British monarchs are crowned, but it is doubtful whether they have ever seen it in the position shown above. No longer guarded by railings, the chair is shown as it will stand in the Coronation Theatre of the Abbey ready for use when their Majesties the King and Queen are crowned.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

TIME Marches On, to the confusion of visionary Social Credit leaders and followers in Alberta. The time for action is at hand by those who desire to restore the credit standing and good name of the province. Since August 1935 when the present government was elected, not a single step has been made towards implementing extravagant promises. Purchasing power has decreased, taxes have increased, and confidence has been rudely shaken in a man of whom thousands remarked: "Premier Aberhart is a good man."

INSTEAD, time has shown that despite his prophetic pious utterances, he is the greatest political opportunist Alberta has known. Everybody who dared to criticize has been branded as a destroyer of confidence in his schemes, even though he had nearly 100 per cent of the legislature behind him and 52 per cent of the voters. With such strength, criticism should not have been considered a serious thing, yet it has been magnified by the premier to such an extent as to make his followers believe it has been the cause of his failure.

PREMIER ABERHART never had a definite scheme to fulfil his promises. In August of 1934, when asked by the writer at a public meeting in Pincher Creek what standard of value he intended to establish for his non-negotiable certificates (which were to take the place of cheques and currency) he stated: "There are many things about the plan which at present are somewhat hazy, but if elected we will engage experts to work out the plan." He has had experts, the last being John Hargrave, who has left indignantly after being invited to help formulate a plan. Alberta apparently is no further on the road to the promised land of monthly dividends for all, just prices and increased purchasing power than it was in August 1935. The plain truth is that there is no plan, and the government is groping in the dark and facing every way like a weather vane blown by the wind to try and catch a favorable breeze of public opinion which is becoming more stormy and indignant as time marches on.

THE SECRECY with which provincial legislators attempt to enshroud their deliberations indicates lack of confidence in themselves and the measures they attempt to make law. They overlook the fact that the people of this province are paying the piper, whether they voted for or against Social Credit. Premier Aberhart and every member are the servants of the people as long as they are paid by public funds, therefore the people have every right to know what is being done. The premier has attempted to muzzle the Press and publish prepared statements of government deliberations. One can imagine how much of the real truth would be revealed were he to succeed in his attempts to license the Press. A free press is a bulwark of democracy.

FEDERAL and provincial governments are compelled to scale down relief costs. Numerous instances are being revealed of the present system being taken advantage of. Men are not making efforts to secure employment because they consider it much easier to obtain relief, with the result that the burden is already too heavy for taxpayers to maintain.

The Calgary Herald editorially commented as follows: "The statement issued by the Canadian Welfare Council dealing with the relief situation in this country contained a paragraph that is attracting general attention. It was found in the Council's survey that forty per cent., or more, of the men on relief, if they have large families, can do better on relief than on average earnings when employed at prevailing wages."

This lays bare one of the main weaknesses of the relief system. It is recognized by all those directly associated with the administration of relief that a large percentage of recipients of long standing have lost all incentive to work. They are apparently content to remain on the relief lists and allow the state to maintain them and their families for the rest of their lives. They have less responsibility and less work to do than in any former period in their lives.

There are many wage earners who have passed through six years of depression without calling on the authorities for aid of any kind. They have supported their families and paid their taxes by the exercise of strict economy and self-denial, thus playing the part of good citizens. It is easy to visualize their bitterness when they confront daily dozens of neighbors drawing relief and making no effort to find work and who live as well or better than they do.

This is a phase of the relief situation that should occupy the attention of legislatures and parliament. The federal government has announced its intention, after the end of March, to diminish progressively its monthly grants in aid of relief support. It is trusting to continued business recovery and the efforts of the National Employment Commission to bring about a gradual thinning of the relief lists. So far as the prairie provinces are concerned, there is little reason to anticipate an early reduction in the number of relief recipients, until far more effective measures for creating work are applied than any so far announced by either the federal or the provincial administrations.

RATEPAYERS in Penticton, B. C., held a meeting last week, to nominate municipal candidates, and this year's assessment came up for very heated discussion, going so far as proposing that the assessor be paid off and allowing the ten-year-old assessment to stand. The battle waged until the chairman called for an adjournment. Still the controversy became more heated, until someone suggested taking up a collection to pay the hall expenses; then the hall was cleared very quickly. The assessor wasn't at the meeting. Could you blame him?

Good Faith—and a Good Name!

Money—the financial resources of small investors—was loaned Alberta in good faith, and at a time when the province needed help. Shall we break faith with these, our fellow-citizens? Shall we not rather preserve our good name of being "square shooters"? Shall we not rather build up than break down the integrity and honesty which are, without doubt, the best policy?

Alberta is a great province, with wonderful natural resources. The development of these resources offers a bright future. This outlook has been hampered by ill-conceived legislation aimed to "soak the rich" but which in reality hurts the poor fellows.

A prominent Canadian, who, by the way, is a successful Western farmer, declared that the drastic steps recently taken by the Alberta Government had, quite naturally, destroyed public confidence, to a certain extent, private credit; but he felt that the "native common sense and judgment of the vast majority of Albertans would assert itself because they know that financial integrity and financial honesty are always the best policy.

This statement is one of a series written by The Mortgage Loans Association of the Province of Alberta. The Association is composed of 14 member companies. It represents hundreds of thousands of Alberta investors in typical Canadian. Its loans to the Province of Alberta amount to some forty-five million dollars.

(This statement in this series will be published in two weeks)

The financial statement of the Crow's Nest Pass Musical Festival published in this issue shows that sufficient support was given to leave a small balance after paying all expenses. The net surplus for 1936 was $76.26, of which $50 was given as a grant by the provincial government. Only by maintaining a credit balance from previous years is the finance committee able to show a credit balance of $529.82 to carry on till the next festival.

Paying a fraternal call on Editor Bartlett it was unusual to find him absent from his office, so a visit was made to his house, where he was found to be laying full length on the Chesterfield with his feet extending a yard more or less beyond, and wrapped in a blanket trying to ward off the attack of some complaint with an unpronounceable name. By the time this appears in print it is fervently hoped that he will have recovered from his indisposition.

WORKING FOR CHURCH FUNDS

At the whist drive held in the parish hall on Friday evening in aid of St. Alban's church funds, prizes were won by Mrs. Derbyshire and Mrs. Martland, the latter tying with Mrs. Boulton and winning the cut of the cards. The gents' prizes were won by Mr. Steve Penney and Mr. Flower, the latter playing as a cent. The gents' travelling prize was won by Walter Williams, and the lady's by Miss Surtees. Andy Thornber gave a 15-minute entertainment with his interesting cartoon drawings depicting local characters, and a recitation. Thanks are due the committee, Messrs. James Johnston, W. Gate and W. Jackson, for their efforts in behalf of the church. All prizes and refreshments were donated by the committee and a few helpers.

This evening (Thursday) a telephone bridge is being held in various homes, under the direction of Mr. A. L. R. Davidson. Several church members are inviting guests, and at the conclusion of play the scores will be telephoned to Mr. Davidson and the winners announced.

JUNIOR HOCKEY GAMES PROVE EXCITING

Junior hockey games are fast becoming the highlight of Sunday afternoon's entertainment as increasing numbers of fans turn out to see the youngsters put up thrilling exhibitions of hockey. For sheer earnestness and sincerity they are hard to beat.

On Sunday the local junior Tigers came from behind in the third period to score three quick goals, giving them a 4-2 decision over Blairmore Juniors. Kubie, centre forward for Blairmore, gave his team the lead in the first period, when he took Emmerson's pass to beat Sygatkuk, in the Coleman net. W. Trost soon put the teams back on even terms when he scored from a pileup in front of Bobek. In the second period, Kubie again put his team ahead when he caught the local defence napping and scored off an easy rebound. Both goalies gave a marvellous exhibition of goal-tending and earned the plaudits of the crowd.

The third period found Coleman on the short end of a 2-1 score, with time getting short, when the breakers began to favor Coleman and they rung up three quick goals through Kanik, Pavlus and Fleming, to put the game safely away. Although outscored, Blairmore were certainly not outplayed and deserved a better decision.

"In the air she can soar like a kite, and her loving husband was just out of sight." This did not refer to any local lady flying on the high trapeze, but to Dorothy Gish at the opera house in "Flying Pat." A delightful local dance was given on Thursday evening last by Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Graham in Graham's hall, in honor of Miss B. K. Fraser, who has been their guest during the holidays. During the first part of the evening a floral contest was indulged in, in which Mrs. Whiteside won the lady's prize. W. E. G. Hall took the gents' prize, while Miss Gladys Lees and Alex. Easton had to be satisfied with the consolation prizes. Dancing was indulged in till 1 a.m., when all went away expressing themselves as being well pleased with the evening's entertainment.

High School Debate—A very interesting debate took place in the high school last Friday afternoon, the subject being: "Resolved, that we are influenced more by the people we meet than by the books we read."

The debaters were students. Affirmative, Sidney White, Patricia Fieldhouse; negative, Tom Barry, Verna McDonald.

The negatives won. The judges were Rev. D. K. Allan, Vice Principal Nimmons and V. C. Dunning. Journal ads. have pulling power

What Is A

REGULAR customers of the EATON Catalogues have become used to seeing the circle shown above, here and there throughout the pages of every Catalogue they receive. They have learned that wherever this sign appears they can safely expect extra value.

Sometimes a Star Special is the result of particularly fortunate buying; sometimes it is specially purchased; sometimes it is an item which we have given a particularly favorable price. But always, it stands for the very utmost in value—a shopping opportunity which is exceptional even at EATON'S, where we pride ourselves that ALL our values are unusual.

So when you see the Star Special sign on any article in our Catalogue, examine it very closely. For this is the very hall-mark of value.

Discover Fine, Deepwater Channel At Entrance Of Hudson Strait
What the marine department describes as a "fine, deepwater channel" at the western entrance of Hudson Strait has been charted by the hydrographic branch and possesses many advantages. The new channel runs between Digges Island and Cape Wolstenholme, which is the sharp point where Hudson Strait ends and Hudson Bay begins.

The distance is 22 miles, and the depth of the channel is 600 feet. The report says it is ice-free in the usual fall for some 10 days after the usual fall of ice from Digges Island is filled with ice.

The newly charted channel possesses a "bleak grandeur," the report says, continuing:

"At the eastern entrance of the sound on the mainland side, stands Cape Wolstenholme, a great rock promontory, whose perpendicular walls rise 1,000 feet from the water's edge. From this great headland, the sound is walled for several miles by stupendous cliffs. Hudson Strait possesses a wealth of magnificent cliffs, but nowhere do they rise so rugged grandeur the cliffs of Wolstenholme. Greatly weathered by the action of the elements, these sheer rock walls have assumed the shape and sombre grey of old cathedral ruins."

Hard On Astronomers

Ellipse Of Sun Will Last Longest In Middle Of Pacific Ocean

The longest total eclipse of the sun since 1804, lasting seven minutes and four seconds, is the cent event on the astronomer's calendar for the new year. This will happen on June 8. Unfortunately, there is no land at the place where it lasts longest, in the middle of the Pacific Ocean. Useful observations can be made from shipboard, but the slight uncertainty of a ship, even on a calm sea, will prevent many researches for which this long eclipse would be ideally adapted.

The shadow will first touch earth in the Pacific Ocean in the vicinity of the New Hebrides, where the sun will rise eclipsed. Then it crosses the ocean and leaves the earth in Peru, where the sun sets while still hidden. At both the beginning and end of the track, the duration will not be as much as at the center, and the sun will be very low in the sky, which will hamper observations.—Detroit Saturday Night.

Ten Years Of Canadian Aviation

Air Transport Has Proved Of Great Assistance To Mining

Aviation is playing an increasingly important part in the transportation problems of Canada, and the use of aircraft in developing and conserving natural resources has increased each year. In 1925 there were only 39 licensed aircraft in the Dominion. By 1935 the figure had grown to 380 and to-day air-mail and air-transport lines are in operation in many parts of the country. In 1925 only a little over a half-million pounds of freight were carried by air. In 1935 the amount had grown to over 26,000,000 pounds, while mail-matter had grown from 1,060 pounds in 1925 to 1,326,064 pounds in 1935.

Commercial air transport has proved of immense value to Canadian mining. Aircraft are first used in preliminary surveys of new territory. Then they bring in prospectors and equipment before, or directly after, the spring "rush," so that operations can start without loss of time that would be inevitable in long journeys by canoe. After this airplanes bring drills and other gear for preliminary work, and carry men, supplies and machinery to the sites for subsequent development operations. Big cargo-planes are employed to carry out "concentrate" or bullion when a mine is in production, and aircraft are relied upon to service established mines, flying regularly to and from the nearest centre of supply.

Aerial survey work is another big field for civil airplanes in Canada. Air surveys are made for suggested transmission lines, for new roads in virgin country, for harbour works, and for water power schemes. A vital part is also played by aircraft in connection with the Canadian fisheries. Planes are used in the stocking of lakes and marketing of fish. For the last ten years the salmon fisheries off the coast of British Columbia have been patrolled by air from June to October. In Canadian forestry engineers rely on air patrols for fire detection and suppression. Survey flights are made to check timber-limits, and by air photography, in a single flight, an engineer can obtain a complete record of cutting operations.

Western Fairs

E. L. Richardson, Calgary, Elected President Of Association

Fred W. Kemp, Edmonton, was elected vice-president and Sid V. Johns, manager of the Saskatoon exhibition, was named secretary for his 10th term.

In order to make satisfactory mid-way arrangements, the Western Canada Fairs Association revised its entire schedule of dates set and the new dates for the class "B" circuit are: Regina, June 21-22; Moose Jaw, June 23-24; Weyburn, June 25-26; Carman, June 27-28; Portage la Prairie, June 29-30; Dauphin, June 31-1; Yorkton, June 12-14; Melfort, June 15-17; Lethbridge, July 19-21; Red Deer, and Vegreville, Alta., July 22-24; Vermilion, Alta., July 26-28; Lloydminster, Sask., July 29-31; North Battleford, Sask., Aug. 2-3; Prince Albert, Sask., Aug. 4-7.

Ask Bounty On Coyotes

HAWKS

(By Manly Miner)

Hawks are not good to eat. Shotgun shells cost money and crows and hawks are scarce as the hawk protectors tell us they are, no one is going out hunting any variety of bird for the sake of killing. The only one who is raising variety of hawks in Ontario are gamekeepers and farmers who are raising chickens, and the hawks they are shooting are the hawks attacking their chickens or other property. Whether they are young so-called "good" hawks or "bad" ones when they are caught in the act of killing chickens, turkeys, ducks and so forth what sane man can oppose the use of the gun and with this being so, why so much yelling about it.

To determine the good from the bad, we have collected birds from blackbirds and pigeons, and hawks that attack them we shoot before they ruin their crops. What better or more fair way can there be to determine what hawks should be controlled? We have seen so much criticism about it, even when we send all hawks we kill to the Royal Ontario Museum for anatomical analysis. The fact that some writers of their articles is proof that they are not sure what they are writing about or ashamed of what they have written or afraid of losing their government job.

Some people have raised the question that hawks were put here to eat the weak and delicate species of bird life to keep down disease. In answer to this I wish to say that several writers report how many passenger pigeons were. They say: "Passenger pigeons were so thick that they represented 95 per cent. of the entire bird population." I have never seen a passenger pigeon, but men who have seen passenger pigeons in such great numbers certainly cannot contradict this statement. Then much being the case, if hawks and owls were put here to keep the delicate species, their numbers should have been reduced 95 per cent. at the time passenger pigeons were exterminated, or in the same proportion. If passenger pigeons represented the bird population of the continent.

Writers are continually referring to examinations of hawks' stomachs made in a foreign country, a thousand miles away, where conditions are different. I know of some such examinations that were made from hawks caught by taxidermists, but the weakness to me of such examinations is: In most cases these hawks are secured by taxidermists from hunters who, perhaps hunting rabbits in winter, shot a hawk and sent it to the taxidermist to be mounted. Hunters are not sending hawks to taxidermists to be mounted during hot summer months because the species would spoil en route. Thus if the truth were known the specimens the taxidermists get are the ones killed during cold winter months, when perhaps the snow is two feet deep. Thus we have the circumstances of a season of the year your song, insectivorous and other bird life is all down in Florida, Mexico or Central America, and these hawks' stomachs naturally contain rats, mice, squirrel, rabbits, partridge, quail and so forth. Why because other bird life has all migrated out of the country, but if these same hawks' stomachs were examined in late May or June they would tell a different story.

Don't misunderstand me and think we want to kill, kill, kill, but I believe man should control, instead of the hawks. That is to say, if hawks attack our mourning doves, which are valuable 365 days in the year as weed seed destroyers, or our barn yard fowl we are raising for market, we believe in a man stepping in and killing the said hawks. And those are the only hawks we are attacking, namely those that are killing our domestic fowl. The hawks that are being killed are the ones attacking our personal property, so why so much yelling by you city people? Those hawks live in the country 365 days in the year and who can see with their own eyes, are not willing to protect the hawks that are going into the country over killing a hawk are the ones living in the cities and read and will even quote what so and so said 50 years ago in his book written in a foreign country several thousand miles away.

Even your so-called "good" hawks at times will steal chickens, and I don't believe in having laws to protect this "good" hawk, and at the same time imprison a man for committing the same act, namely stealing chickens.

Here at our bird sanctuary we are raising between 1,000 and 2,000 mourning doves annually, which live practically all on weed seeds. Besides several hundred Bob-White Quail go out from here each year, saying nothing about the hundreds of other song and insectivorous birds that are an overflow from our protected area brought about by us protecting them from their natural enemies. What is the overflow of bird life to this country through the fact you have lived? Instead of you spending your time condemning our actions here at the bird sanctuary why not have lived, put your own scientific thought and theory into action so that we ignorant people can see how things should be managed.

A person might have all the scientific facts and theory in the world, but what good is it if it is not practical and can be put into practice to show the common people that our system is all wrong? Kingsville, Ont.

HAD AGONIZING
PAINS IN HER BACK

Free From Pain Since Taking
Kruschen

Like many other sufferers from backache and rheumatic ailments, this woman decided to try Kruschen Salts in a last attempt to obtain relief from pain. To her surprise, the pains did grow less, and in a few months the backache had disappeared. Having made sure of the results, the now writes as follows:

"For about four months I had agonizing pains in my back, and could not turn in bed. During that time I tried various remedies, but obtained no relief, and was seriously considering going into hospital. However, seeing a case similar to mine described in an advertisement for Kruschen, I thought I would try it, and was more than surprised to find the pain getting less. I have been taking Kruschen for four months, and would not be without it for anything. I must say I am free from those dreadful pains."

(Mrs.) R.C.

Kruschen is an excellent diuretic—that is, it helps to stimulate kidney functions. When kidneys are restored to healthy, normal action, poisonous waste is properly eliminated, the blood-stream is purified, and you get welcome relief from the dragging pains of backache.

THE FINANCIAL COST OF ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES

Golden text: Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread? and your labor for that which satisfieth not? Isaiah 55:2.

Lesson: Proverbs 23:17, 23, 20, 21; Matthew 24:45-51; John 6:26, 27, 33. Devotional reading: Proverbs 23:29-32.

Explanation And Comments

Alcoholic Beverages Tend To Poverty, Proverbs 23:17; 23:20, 21. Oil was used at that time for cooking and by "he that loveth oil" the writer of our first excerpt from Proverbs meant one who cared for banquets where wine flowed freely.

Does indulgence in alcoholic beverages tend to poverty? The "National" of the Lucy Webb Hayes Training School answers: "Alcohol will remove grass stains from summer clothes. It will also remove summer clothes, also spring and winter clothes, not only from the trunk and but also from his wife and children. It will also remove household furniture from the house and establish from the pantry; the smile from the face of his wife, and the happiness from the home. As a remover, alcohol has no equal."

In our second selection from Proverbs, drowsiness refers to the state that follows nights spent in drinking. Moffatt translates the lines thus:

Never sit down with tipsy men or among gluttons; The drunkard and the glutton shall come to poverty, and shall never be able to rise again.

And revealing leaves men in rags, "I am not a temperance lecturer in disguise," said Andrew Carnegie, "but a man who knows and tells you what observation has proved to him, and I say to you that you are more likely to fall in your career from acquiring the habit of drinking liquor than from any of the other temptations likely to assail you."

National Research In Canada

Results Aimed At Improvement Of Living Conditions In Dominion

Serving the people of Canada in the study and solution of national problems involved in the application of science to industry, and with a view always to the betterment of living conditions in the Dominion, the National Research Council has made notable progress in many directions during 1936. Commercial applications of the laboratory results obtained from time to time continue to demonstrate the practical value of the work, and show that being spent on research on a national basis yield profitable returns.

In the National Research Laboratories at Ottawa the investigations under way have for their main object the promotion of the process of absorption whereby industry and commerce may be improved and expanded through the adoption of the latest and best methods. The laboratories, employing about 190 persons, including scientific, clerical and shop staffs, are organized in five main divisions: agriculture and biology; chemistry; physics and electrical engineering; mechanical engineering including aeronautics; and research information, with which is associated a national scientific library service.

Through its associate committees the Council has continued its previous years to receive the advice and active support of some hundreds of research workers and technologists in government departments, the universities, and industries. Scholarships are granted annually by the National Research Council as in 1936 thirty students, selected from thirteen Canadian universities, benefited under this scheme.

Thou Shalt Not Love

— A NOVEL BY —

CHAPTER XV.

Good intentions were one thing. Trying to reason with the madman at the wheel of Michael Fairbourne's car was utterly hopeless. Starr gave it up nearly as soon as he had enclosed her in the car, protesting still, hoping the car's purring noise would not wake up everybody in the place. Small chance of that, though. The liquor served by the Dales were as potent as any Peter Styvengard had ever served to the Indians.

The black silhouette of Stephanie's house disappeared behind them. They whirled out of the tree-shaded driveway, into the highway and sped through the night. Starr did not know where.

As soon as she thought they had got to where they could talk freely, over and over she pleaded.

"No good can possibly come of this, Michael. We haven't the right to be so much as disgraced. It's terrible! You're engaged to another girl, we were both guests in her home, and I—"

"And you belong to another man," he sneered. "I get it, Starr. It's going to be a little tough on Lance."

Starr winced. She had quite forgotten that she was still wearing Lance's bracelet. She had not taken it off during her preparations for bed. She had worn it deliberately, much as she might have worn a chain of servitude. Deliberately she had wanted to keep before her eyes the badge which must bolster her courage for any proposed step.

Vaguely she recalled one fleeting thought when she had poured the powders into the glass of effect. When they found her, wearing Lance's bracelet—what a touch of drama! Nobody would really know why...

Michael was going on inexorably: "You might as well make up your mind to it, Starr. What we are doing now places us both beyond the pale. We'll both be in the headlines tomorrow—what a story! And who cares now! It won't be a story either of us will like, but we should worry! It doesn't matter now. Nothing matters but ourselves, and to-night! Once you told me—I haven't forgotten it—'This is your 'Play-Girl' philosophy, isn't it?'

They spun along under the wan moon, along the Westchester roads that were wide and white and silver. They passed few cars. Most people, even the play-people of this wealthy community, were tired now, at home sleeping, hoping to acquire a little more energy for another day's burst of joy-getting.

Once he pulled up at the side of a road, and stopped, yanking a flask out of his pocket. He produced it with a flourish and in an impudent imitation of her own drawing voice suggested:

"Have a lil' drink? It softens—sharpens—no, that's not right—what I mean, if softens life's sharp edges!"

Starr turned on him furiously. "You're drunk, Michael Fairbourne! That's what's the matter with you! Why do you have to be a beast?"

In her heart she knew he was not drunk, unless it was in a queer way that was foreign to any she had ever encountered. His eyes were soberly cold and steady. There was not even a white light—only look of grim determination. But she needed something tangible to seize upon, to blame for the fantastic situation which was engaging them. A wild situation—more like something out of a crazy book or a nightmare dream.

Michael mocked, as his foot pressed the starter and the car shot ahead again: "You are not always so fastidious."

Starr burned to her inmost soul with the memory of that scene at the Casino. Suddenly she picked up the flask which Michael had laid down on the seat between them and hurled it out of the car. It crashed on the hard concrete, sending out a tinkling of glass splinters above the purr of the car.

Michael said: "Oh, very well!" looking at her queerly.

Mercifully her consciousness of much of the rest of that ride was dulled. She had run the gamut of human emotion. She sank back into her seat in an apathy that approached half-consciousness. Dimly she realized it when they stopped in a small town which a string of lights announced they had reached a main street. Half consciously she recognized that Michael had stopped the car, was talking to a state policeman who loomed largely on his motorcycle and who was grinning, Michael was talking questions. It didn't matter what. Nothing did. How could anything in the world matter now—after this night, and what was happening? The Starr Ellison had always known simply could not feel any more. Limbs and mind were numbed and lulled into a strange lethargy.

It might have been another eternity after she had heard the voice of the man on the motorcycle—Michael thanking him—that they spun through darkness and an unreal world before she heard his voice again, rousing her.

They were in another town, it appeared, which was evident only from the lonesome lights that pierced the dark and the loneliness. They were stopping before a house. Michael seemed to know where they were. It didn't matter.

Starr began hastily to understand when Michael roused up the sleepy justice of the peace who came to his door with a flash-light that showed his pajamas hanging loosely under a frayed dressing gown, and a hastily-donned, wrinkled shirt that was collarless. The man grinned good-naturedly. He might be sleepy, but this was something to which he was accustomed. He had been, ever since these small Westchester towns on the edge of the Connecticut line had become the Gretna Greens for New Yorkers, surprised to learn they could not get married in Greenwich or Stamford without having lived in either town five days.

Starr dozed some more on the hair-cloth sofa in the parlor of the justice of the peace, and Michael appeared to have some heavy business outside. She heard words between the justice and Michael. "... A nasal twang from the former. 'He won't mind—he's used to it—I reckon a double swab-buck'll make him forget he's sleepy.' ... Yeah, he can make out the license all right. ..."

Another interlude, when a buxom woman, hastily dressed, came into the room, her eyes soft, filled with thoughts of romance that probably was gone from her forever. "... A bouquet of half-wit's golden glow in her fat hands—the last flowers of the season."

"I thought you'd ought to have just a few posies anyhow, dear. ... I always say it don't seem like a wedding without flowers. ... You want to powder your nose? Anything? I'm going to be your witness. ... A delighted laugh. 'I always say there's nothing like bein' married to a justice of the peace. There's always so much excitement—so unexpected.' ..."

Starr hardly heard the woman. She felt dazed, staring at the golden glow when the woman bustled away. ... Flowers! For her wedding! Her nightmare wedding that fitted in with the rest of her life.

Medal For Dr. Dafoe

Is Honored For Outstanding Service To Children Everywhere

To Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, physician to the Dionne quintuplets, was the 1937 medal for outstanding service to children, Parents magazine of New York, announced. Dr. Walter Damosch won the medal last year for his music appreciation broadcasts. In making the award to the little country doctor of Calander, Ont., George J. Hecht, publisher of the magazine, said: "To be the first to keep quintuplets alive, and to bring them to optimum health and vigor, is recognized by all as an outstanding achievement. One of our which Dr. Dafoe deserves the widespread recognition which is his. But of even greater significance is the fact that Dr. Dafoe, by his successful demonstration with the quintuplets, has taught mothers everywhere the vital importance of following up-to-date, scientific methods in safe-guarding the health of infants and children."

India Selling Diamonds

Princes And Wealthy Families Take Advantage Of High Prices

Diamonds which for many years have formed part of the collections of ruling princes and wealthy Indian families are fast passing into the hands of dealers and treasure collectors in Europe. During the last four or five months about Rs. 2,000,000 worth are believed to have been exported to London, Paris and Antwerp. Most of India's requirements of the precious stones are supplied by Belgium. As a rule diamonds are not exported from that country, but at present Indian owners are tempted to part with their possessions on account of the high prices which diamonds weighing from eight to ten carats bring in Europe. While large size diamonds are finding their way back to Europe, the demand for smaller stones continues unabated in India.—Brandon Sun.

Wants Coronation Dollar

Mrs. George Black, member of parliament for the Yukon, will sponsor a resolution in the House of Commons urging the government to coin 1,000, or five million about $a. 2,000,000 of the coronation of King George VI.

Mrs. Black believed the coins will be kept as souvenirs, will thus help the national credit, while the minting of such a large issue would prove impractical for the silver mining industry of Canada.

Rutherford Hayes was the first President of the United States to sweep wine and brandy bottles from the White House table. And it was at the flimsy behest of Mrs. Hayes.

The Duke Of Kent

Greatly Resembles His Grandmother

The Late Queen Alexandra, the Archbishop of Canterbury recently described King George VI. as inheriting more of his father's characteristics than his brothers. It might be said of the Duke of Kent, who is now 31, that he has developed the greatest likeness among the four royal brothers to his grandmother, the late Queen Alexandra. The resemblance is noticeable not only in features, but in tastes. He has the late Queen-Mother's love of music, and inherits also her gifts as a letter-writer. His private correspondence has the wit, charm, and felicitous phrasing of a practised letter-writer.

Little Helps For This Week

The Lord will perfect that which concerneth me; Thy mercy O Lord endureth forever. Forsake not the works of Thine own hands. Psalm 138:8

As God leads me I will go, Nor choose my way; Let Him choose the joy or woe Of every day. They cannot hurt my soul, Because in His control; I leave to Him the whole, As His children may.

Why is it that we are so busy with the material? It is not our province, and it is not a criminal interference with Him to whom it belongs to attempt to dispose of it, or to fill it with our wild imaginations? To do God's will is it made known to us, to find out what He requires of us, and to live with a cheerful trust that His path He marks out for us leads to our perfection, this is our duty and happiness. Why will we not walk in the plain simple way?

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

At all Christian Science churches next Sunday the subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Love." The following is one of the Scriptural quotations contained in the Lesson-Sermon: "As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you; and ye shall be comforted in Jerusalem" (Isaiah 66: 13). One of the correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, is as follows (page 517): "In divine Science, we have not as much authority for considering God masculine, as we have for considering Him feminine, for Love imparts the clearer idea of Deity."
